HOME - Everyone in your home should know what to do in an emergency, whether it's a power outage, fire, or natural disaster, such as a flood or tornado.

- Instructions: Prepare simple, one-page emergency instructions, and update as things change. Include information about exits, fire extinguishers, and power shut-offs. Place them where they can be seen. And have everyone practice.
- Medical Things: Make sure your child's medicine, medical records, and important equipment are easy to grab if you have to leave suddenly.
- Electricity and Telephone: Tell your local utilities that your child depends on electricity. Ask them to "flag" your household and to bring power back quickly to your home. Get a generator if you can.
- Emergency Services: Visit your nearest emergency center (fire department, rescue squad, 911 facility). Tell them about your child. Invite them to your home to become familiar with the situation and to give you emergency tips.
- Local Hospital: For some children or youth, the nearest hospital might be the safest place to be in a disaster, so you and your doctor should work out admitting procedures to avoid an ER wait.
- ◆ Emergency Plastic Bin: Keep a box containing flashlight, water, blankets, wet wipes, with necessities and comforts for your child, close to an exit.

SCHOOL - Every student with special health care needs, whether physical or emotional, must have a school emergency plan. A student's IEP plan should include emergency plans available to all school personnel. But one team member must be responsible for getting your child to safety, no matter where he is in the school, and must practice with your child frequently. Make sure your child's school bus staff also knows what to do in an emergency—and has practiced it.

OTHER PLACES - Every place your child goes should have an emergency plan for your child, especially if they have special needs. This includes child care center, summer camp, hospital, grandparent's house, recreation program, as well as the glove compartment in each of your cars, and even your child's backpack.
